CITATION OF HONOUR

PRESENTED TO

Prof. Dr. Sarita B. Mantri

Principal & Professor, MAEER Medical College, Pune

Madam, you have been contributing ceaselessly for the noble cause of Education as a dedicated and devoted teacher of repute for the last several years. You are not only a highly proficient teacher, but also a Personal Philosopher and Guide to all of your students. Your personal attention, sympathetic approach and commitment to the cause of education have earned a very good name for your good self as a highly respected IDEAL TEACHER II.

You have been a part of the MIT Family for the last 20 years and have served MAEER Medical College, Pune, with great distinction. You have an outstanding experience of nearly 40 years in the field of medicine, of which, 35 years have been devoted to education.

Community Medicine is your area of specialization and you have carried out various work in this field. Your contribution and selfless service during the aftermath of the Kullari earthquake in 1993, is particularly noteworthy and the same has been recognized far and wide.

Among other achievements, your dedicated efforts as Principal of your college have helped it to get postgraduate courses in 9 subjects and also it being awarded 'Grade A' by NAAC, Bangalore.

You have delivered a number of scholarly and informative lectures on preventive, protective and promotive health education for the benefit of the society. You have published 26 papers in national and international journals and have been widely honoured and awarded for your excellent achievements in medical services as well as teaching. You are the perfect epitome of an 'Ideal Teacher' devoted to the holistic development of students. The MIT Family certainly values of your long and distinguished association with us.

Your knowledge, experience and style of teaching your subject has greatly endeared you amongst the students and made you one of the most preferred teachers. You have greatly helped the students in shaping their careers.

Madam, for you, "TEACHING" has been your life's mission, and a religious duty. You have been a shining example of an 'Ideal Teacher' - "AGURU" befitting the noble tradition of MOTHER INDIA of paying respect to our "Revered Teachers".

गुरुणा गुरुर्विष्णुः गुरुदेवी मातृदेवाः । गुरुः पाश्चात् पाश्चात् तस्यै श्रीगुरुभ्यः ॥

We concretely hope and feel confident that under the guidance of Teachers like you, MOTHER INDIA will have a very bright future.

Madam, on behalf of the Management, Staff and Students of MAEER's MIT Group of Institutions, it gives us great pleasure once again and makes us feel proud in presenting to you this IDEAL TEACHER AWARD as a token of our appreciation on the occasion of Teachers' Day 2017, on Saturday, 9th September 2017, at the auspicious hands of Hon'ble Shri. This is the abstract:

Aim: Diagnostics which provide objective information to facilitate evidence-based treatment decisions could improve a wound's chance of healing. Accurate wound measurements, objective bacterial assessment, and the regular, consistent tracking of these parameters are important aspects of wound care. This study aimed to assess the accuracy, clinical incorporation, and documentation capabilities of the MolecuLight i:X wound imaging device. Methods: Benchtop wound models with known dimensions and clinical wound images were repeatedly measured by trained clinicians to quantify accuracy and intra/inter-user coefficients of variation (COV) of the MolecuLight measurement software. In a clinical trial of 50 wounds, wound dimensions were digitally measured and fluorescence images acquired to assess for the presence of bacteria at moderate-to-heavy loads. Finally, fluorescence imaging was implemented into the routine assessment of 22 routine diabetic foot ulcers (DFU) to determine appropriate debridement level and location based on bacterial fluorescence signals. Results: Wound measurement accuracy was >95% (COV <3%). In the 50 wound clinical trial, 72% of study wounds demonstrated positive bacterial fluorescence signals. Levine sampling of wounds was found to under-report bacterial loads relative to fluorescence-guided curettage samples. Furthermore, fluorescence documentation of bacterial presence and location(s) resulted in more aggressive, fluorescence-targeted debridement in 17/20 diabetic foot ulcers after standard of care debridement failed to eliminate bacterial fluorescence in 100% of DFU debridements.

Conclusion: The MolecuLight device can be readily implemented for objective, evidenced-based wound assessment and documentation at the bedside. Bedside localization of regions with moderate-to-heavy bacterial loads facilitated improved sampling, debridement targeting, and improved wound bed preparation.

Dear Dr. Nagoba,

Greetings from Elsevier and hope this email finds you well !

As discussed today, we are excited to invite you for our upcoming e-learning product – ClinicalKey Student (CKS) as we are seeking association with you in the capacity of an Editor for Microbiology as one of the specialty for CKS.

Dr.Nagoba, ClinicalKey Student is an interactive education platform that supports students and faculty by enhancing the learning experience with tools tailored to develop and assess the medical knowledge of aspiring professionals. Please find a detailed presentation on CKS concept for your reference.

For the same, we envisage your role as a guide & mentor for this effort by helping us choose relevant topics in the area of Microbiology, refer potential authors and approving/reviewing content/questions before publication. We will be organizing a few meetings each year to strategize with the Executive Council members. For the same, I would request you to please accept this invitation of ours to be on board this new-age platform. As part of the Editorial Board, the efforts of individuals will be well compensated. As a next step, we shall be sharing an agreement with you to formalize your relationship with Elsevier in this regard.

We really look forward to working with you on the same.

Regards,
Arvind

"The Association of Red Blood Cell Distribution Width with Secondary Infection and Prognosis in Coronavirus Disease-19"

Abstract

The aim of the present study was to evaluate red blood cell distribution width (RDW) as a predictive factor for the diagnosis of the severe cases of coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19). This study was conducted on 204 inpatients, diagnosed with COVID-19 and treated at Imam Reza Hospital, Mashhad, Iran. The patients were divided into severe and moderate groups according to their clinical signs and examination results, as well as pulmonary imaging features. The collected data included demographic information, laboratory test results, applied treatments, complications, and outcomes. Receiver operating characteristics curves (ROC) analysis was carried out to define the reliability of RDW as a predictive indicator for severe COVID-19. Based on the results, a high level of RDW showed a statistically significant correlation with the development of secondary infections and elongation of hospital stay ($P \leq 0.001$). The optimal cutoff value for RDW to predict the length of hospital stay (≤ 7 days or >7 days) was estimated to be 14.65% with 94% sensitivity and 71.3% specificity. Furthermore, the area under the curve was calculated as 0.895 in the ROC curve analysis. High predictive value of RDW, as a routine blood test parameter, could be used for the diagnosis of COVID-19 patients who are at a higher risk of developing secondary infections and longer hospital stay, thereby facilitating better disease management.

Sir, you have been contributing ceaselessly for the noble cause of Education as a dedicated and devoted teacher of repute for the last several years. You are not only a highly prolific teacher, but also a Friend, Philosopher and Guide to all of your students. Your personal attention, sympathetic approach and commitment to the cause of education have earned you the title of IDEAL TEACHER.

You are a respected member of the MIT Family, and have been discharging your duties with great devotion, discipline and dedication. It is a matter of great pride for us that you as one of the most distinguished academicians in the field of Physiology as Professor and HoD Physiology at MIMER Medical College Latur.

You have worked as Lecturer as well as Prof & Head of physiology till 2018 and helped with more than 150 MIC Inspections. You have contributed to multiple campus programs like Ganesh Utsav and the Annual social gatherings. Your work on anti-ragging, complaints and student welfare committees is inspirational and has resulted in an excellent as well as healthy campus environment. Additionally you have worked as an active member of MET cell, NAAC Committee, as Coordinator of the 1st IQAC for 4 years. Moreover you have published 13 papers in International & national journals. You are an inspiring teacher and an ideal colleague.

Your knowledge, experience and style of teaching your subject has greatly endeared you amongst the students and made you one of the most preferred teachers. You have helped the students immensely in shaping their careers.

Sir, for you, "TEACHING" has been your life's mission, and a religious duty. You have been a shining example of an "Ideal Teacher" - "A GURU" befitting the noble tradition of MOTHER INDIA offering respect to our "Revered Teachers".

गुरुर्वक्त्रा गुरुर्विष्णुः, गुरुदेवो नदीधराः । गुरुः साक्षात् परब्रह्म तस्मै श्रीगुरुभ्येवम् ॥

We sincerely hope and feel confident that under the guidance of teachers like you, MOTHERINDIA will keep flourishing and prospering.

On behalf of the Board of Trustees, Management, Staff and Students of MAEER's MIT Group of Institutions, Pune, India, it gives us great pleasure once again and makes us feel proud in presenting this IDEAL TEACHER AWARD to you which is a token of our appreciation, on the occasion of "TEACHERS' DAY," Monday, 6th September 2021, at the auspicious hands of Hon'ble Dr. K. C. Vora, Sr. Dy. Director & Head, ARAI Academy & Knowledge Centre, Pune.
